TO SENATE BY MONDAY

Favorable Action Expected There.—May Affect Several Men In Nodaway County.

The Spanish War Veterans pension bill, of interest to several in Nodaway County, will reach the Senate Monday, according to a letter received by H. D. Snyder from Congressman Charles L. Faust.

The bill is expected to have but little difficulty in the upper house, according to present indications.

When the measure was passed by the House Monday no votes were cast against it. Mr. Faust, in his letter, says that was the first time since he has been in Congress that a bill has been passed unanimously.

The measure provides for an increase of the minimum pension from $12 to $20 per month, and the maximum from $20 to $50 per month. Widows' pensions are increased from $20 to $30 per month and the amount for minor children is raised from $4 to $8.

There are about thirty Spanish War veterans in Nodaway County but only those disabled or more than 62 years old are affected by the bill.

Senator George H. Williams has indicated he will support the bill.

Swift Punishment For Greek Revolutionists

Court Marshal to Open Hearings This Afternoon—Death Penalty If They Are Found Guilty.

Athens, April 10.—General Pangalos has ordered swift punishment of the leaders of the mutineers of Salonika. A court marshal has been summoned to open hearings this afternoon in cases of those who attempted to lead a revolt yesterday.

The accused will be tried under laws providing the death penalty if they are found guilty.

The government was directed against Salonika military authorities by a band of rebels numbering 4,000. It is suspected in some quarters that the rebellion was inspired by General Plastiras, a former leader of the Greek military government. The revolt was suppressed by a bombardment by the Greek fleet.

WOMAN HEADS CHICKEN ASSN.

POULTRY BREEDERS ELECT MRS. JOHN HAMILTON.

OFFICE IS TEMPORARY

Regular Organization Meeting To Be Held At Farm Bureau Offices

Mrs. John Hamilton of Maryville was elected temporary president of the Nodaway County Poultry Breeders Association at a meeting of the organization this afternoon at the Nodaway County Farm Bureau. Theodore Gray was elected temporary secretary. The meeting this afternoon was poorly attended, and a regular meeting will be held Saturday afternoon, April 24, at which time permanent officers will be chosen and a constitution and by-laws will be adopted.

The poultry association in this county has been in a quiescent state for more than a year. In the past, it was a practice of the organization to hold a poultry show each fall. This was not done last year, however.

A board of directors will also be elected at the meeting on the 24th, and plans will be laid for the poultry show this year. It will be held in either the late fall or early winter.

A canvass for members for the organization will be made in the near future. All bona fide poultry breeders of the county are eligible to membership, any anyone interested is asked to attend the meeting. J. Ross Fleetwood, county extension agent, today expressed his belief that there are in the neighborhood of 250 persons in this county who are eligible to membership in the poultry association. Mr. Fleetwood said that a strong working organization would benefit each member and would stimulate interest in poultry breeding in the county.

No Settlement of Any Kind on French Debt

U. S. Officials Amazed at Peret's Announcement That "Negotiations Are Proceeding Satisfactorily."

Washington, April 10. — Literal amazement was expressed by governmental officials here today over the announcement in Paris by Raoul Peret, the French finance minister, that negotiations for the funding of the 4-billion-dollar French war debt to the United States "are proceeding satisfactorily and an agreement will be reached and signed within eight days."

There have been no recent negotiations and so far as American officials are concerned, the status of the French debt is just about where it was when Joseph Calliaux returned to Paris last October.

WETS PARADE CANADA LAW

EXPLAIN PROVISIONS OF GOVERNMENTAL CONTROL.

CLAIM IT BENEFITS

Witnesses Say Crime Has Decreased, Bootlegging Halted and General Morals of Country Better.

Washington, April 10.—The wet drive for modification of prohibition today carried the Senate wet and dry commission to a first-hand investigation of the Quebec system of governmental liquor control.

Sir William Stavart, former member of the Quebec liquor commission, was called to explain how the Canadian province meets its liquor problem. Under the Quebec system, the government permits the sale of distilled liquors, beers and wines in the government stores for consumption of citizens in their homes. There are no saloons and the wets claim the system has wiped out the bootleggers and brought actual temperance to the province.

Meanwhile, the wets are well satisfied with the week's attacks on existing conditions.

Washington, April 10.—A futile trial of prohibition in the Canadian provinces of Quebec and Manitoba led to the demoralization of the people and an increase in crime, the debauchery of the youth, and finally the repeal of the dry law, the Senate prohibition committee was told today by Canadian authorities.

After the aroused voters had installed a system of government sale of liquors, the Canadians declared crime was reduced, morals improved and the people satisfied.

The situation in Quebec was described by Sir William Stavert, former member of the Quebec liquor commission, while Francis William Russell of the Winnipeg Temperance Society explained the Manitoba change.

John Sullivan, president of the New York state federation of labor, previously had described the amazing conditions of liquor law violations in his state.

Plebiscite Meeting Postponed to Monday

Ambassadors From Chile and Peru Await Further Instructions Before Conferring With Kellogg.

Washington, April 10.—The meeting scheduled for this afternoon between Secretary of State Kellogg and the ambassadors from Chile and Peru to discuss the Tacna-Arica dispute was postponed this morning until Monday.

The delay is said to have been granted to await further instructions from the home governments of Chile and Peru.

Washington, April 10.—The state department was hopeful today that some break in the tenseness of the Tacna-Arica dispute would come before nightfall.

The principal stumbling block, this far, it was learned, was over the question of Peru's willingness to let the plebiscite go on while the diplomatic negotiations were in progress.

It was agreed, however, that should the plenipotentiaries arrive at some solution of the territorial tangle, the plebiscite would automatically cease.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

HOUSE-OWNING VS. APARTMENT RENTING.

Light is thrown on the perennial question of whether it is cheaper to buy than to rent, by building cost figures contained in a bulletin of the Research Bureau of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. According to these figures a duplex frame house may be built for as low as 27 cents a cubic foot, and the highest grade detached frame house can be built for 44 cents. High class apartments cost 77 cents a cubic foot, cheap ones, 42 cents.

It would appear from these figures, that the investment in one's own house of the best quality frame construction would be about half as much as the sum on which he would have to pay interest in a high-grade apartment. That would leave the home owner with the interest in his pocket on the other half, and applicable to amortization of principal.

The cheapest ingredient of good business is one of the most profitable and that is courtesy.

Everybody wants to help the farmer. One philanthropist wants to plant axle trees in waste lands.

Even Missouri, with her prairies and unlimited acres of cleared lands, had 2215 forest fires in 1924 which burned over 411,861 acres of timber and did damage estimated at $362,150. And the worst of it is that nearly all forest fires are the result of human carelessness or human cussedness.

Conditions in St. Louis and Kansas City are a thousand per cent better since they began to send men to the penitentiary and quit letting criminals run those cities. The higher courts have also exercised a powerful influence by more prompt decisions in criminal cases and by emphatic affirmations where guilt seemed to be certain.

H. L. Mencken, editor of the magazine Mercury, was acquitted in Boston after his arrest for selling the paper on the street but he didn't fare so well with the Post Office Department. An order has been issued barring the April number from the mails. The article to which objection is made by Herbert Asbury, a former resident of Farmington, Missouri. It is entitled "Hatricks" and it is said to deal with alleged conditions in that town years ago. The people of Farmington say it is "generally untrue" and the Post Office Department says it is obscene and unfit for the mails. Too bad modern writers can't find something decent to write about.

Expect Inquiry Will Favor General Wood

President Chooses Governor's Best Friend To Make An "Investigation" of Philippines Conditions.

By CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—The Filipinos think Governor General Leonard Wood has too much power.

Wood thinks he hasn't enough.

Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis announced he was going over to the Philippines to find out which was right.

The White House announced that, oh, no, he wasn't; he couldn't be spared from the War Department for a long trip; that Carmi Thompson of Ohio was going instead.

* * *

Much emphasis is laid on the fact that Carmi Thompson is General Wood's best friend. Such being the case, it doesn't necessarily follow that Thompson was picked to decide in Wood's favor and against the Filipinos. If the president expected the Filipinos to win, it's conceivable that he might have been extra careful to choose a special commissioner who couldn't possibly be suspected of any prejudice against Wood.

* * *

However, the betting in Washington is that Commissioner Thompson's conclusions ill be Governor General Wood's—that he'll find the only thing the matter with Wood's administration has been that he hasn't had power enough.

This is Washington's hunch on general principles, and for the more specific reason that it's a finding large American rubber consumers will like.

The rubber interests, as everybody knows, wants an American source of supply. The Philippines are good islands for the purpose, but are they American?—and can they be depended on to stay so? The rubber folk hesitate to invest money there until they're certain the answers to both these questions are safely affirmative.

A GOOD OLD STOVE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE'S nothing like a good old stove,
Buy what you will, say what you will.
The more I live, the more I rove,
The more I find, when days are chill,
The only thing to warm you through
Is something you can get up to.

A furnace, yes, it's mighty nice;
But it's down cellar hid away.
When you come in all snow and ice
You want to see the firelight play,
The heat that's right, the heat that's real,
You have to see as well as feel.

There's something cordial in the light
That glitters through the isinglass
It lends a comfort to the night.
And redder makes the ruddy lass
And fairer makes the fairest home
To any man who has to roam.

There's nothing like a good old friend
They're much like stoves, it seems to me,
Whatever wisdom books may lend,
You want a friend that you can see.
Some hand to touch, a faith to feel,
The kind of friendship that is real.

However wise the wisest men,
However great they may appear,
When you're in difficulty, then
You want a friend you needn't fear
When cold and weary, weak and blue
A friend that you can get up to.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says she sees they're burning corn in the West and it's a great comfort to know, in case the coal should give out, that her mother always buys these things in quantities and they have six dozen cans of it in the cellar.

STILL SAWING WOOD.

Fifty Years Ago

(Taken from the Nodaway Democrat, April 6, 1876).

On account of the bad state of the roads, the sale of the celebrated "90-Day-Seed Corn" of Charles W. Spear, has been postponed until Saturday, April 15, at which time 1,000 bushels of this corn will be sold at a public sale in Maryville.

White Cloud Lodge No. 92, I. O. O. F. at its last meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Fred D. Snyder, N. G., Jacob M. Gile, V. G., Ira Ellsworth, Secy., A. S. Charles, Per. Sec., George Conrad, treasurer.

A prisoner confined in our county jail, by the name of William Dew, attempted to make his escape on last Saturday afternoon. He succeeded in breaking the staple which held the bolt of the lock and it appears was quietly lying on his oars, waiting for the boy to carry him his supper when he would come out and close the boy in and thus make his escape. It was discovered, however, that he had loosened the bolt before the exepcted hour of his deliverance came and with the discovery, doubtless vanished all of his fond hopes of escaping. At any rate, he did not get out.

The county jail caught fire on last Saturday night at a late hour but fortunately the fire was discovered and the means applied to extinguish it before it did much injury. The fire originated from the flue, and the only visible effect resulting therefrom is that a portion of the shingles on the east end of the roof were torn off.

As the stock interests of Nodaway County is the backbone of our resources, we have taken some pains to ascertain the amount that has been purchased and marketed since last October up to April 1 of this year as shown from the books of the Maryville banks. We find that there has been paid out here in Maryville for hogs and cattle during this period of five months, in the aggregrate, $763,787.00. The above showing is, indeed most gratifying, especially so when we remember that a few of the winter cattle have been marketed yet. Most of them will be marketed in June. One of our heaviest shippers is Mr. Silas W. Briggs, Esq. We learn that he alone has paid out for cattle and hogs in Maryville during the last five months, $131,467.00. Nodaway County is indeed the banner stock county in the state.

FOR LACK OF A COMMA

The lamp lighted by the supreme court of Missouri last June is beginning to shed sufficient light to show that the omission of a comma in an indictment charging murder is not sufficient to thwart the ends of justice. An indictment, it is true, was dismissed for want of a comma in Judge Mix's court, but the defendant has been held over until the omission can be corrected. He has not been allowed to wriggle out because of the oversight of a clerk who probably considered commas something that bothered the school teachers and cluttered up law books.

Missouri has seen too many instances in the past where the omission of the word "the" or "and" or the substitution of "with" for "without" has permitted a real culprit to escape just punishment. It was such a condition that drew the decision worded by Presiding Judge R. F. Walker last year that "the repetitions and involved averments of the old forms of indictment are no longer deemed essential by modern construction of pleadings in criminal cases." In other words, technicalities that had been saving men guilty of crime from punishment, were to be taboo and the facts in the case were to count instead of the form. It was a radical change, but one that was warmly welcomed by those who were utterly weary of conditions under which there was too much failure of law enforcement.

To the laymen the ommission of a comma in an indictment such as that presented in Judge Mix's court is of little moment. Everyone knew that the man's name was not "Colored"; that it was simply the designation of his race; that its lack was simply an oversight on the part of some clerk. The case will go back to the grand jury where the omission will be speedily corrected. The lack of a comma will not thwart justice, it will simply delay its operation.—St. Louis Star.

UNWARRANTED CRITICISM.

The record does not bear out the charge that the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice is political and was organized to investigate Republican office holders. The association was formed and its investigations have been promoted by men of public spirit and broad views. These men were and are actuated by a determination to discover the primary causes of crime in this state and to recommend practical measures to check and reduce criminal activities.

There has been nothing partisan in their reports, six of which have been made public. The whole aim of the association has been to reveal facts; to deal with methods, policies, weaknesses, tendencies and shortcomings that were inherent in the established manner of dealing with criminals, or were due to the limitations or exactions of the criminal laws and procedure. The matter of personnel in the reports has been almost wholly ignored. What was said was applicable regardless of the personality or the political affiliations of those engaged in the administration of the criminal laws.

It is absurd to say the association is composed of partisan democrats on the trail of Republican office holders. There are more Republicans than Democrats on the board of directors. Also in reports on the offices of prosecuting attorney and sheriff, and perhaps on other departments more Democratic than Republican office holders would have been objects of criticism if the criticism had been personal instead of impersonal.—Kansas City Star.

MEDDLIN' IN BUSINESS

And now Burton's Cash Grocery has added a meat market to its equipment. Watch meat prices sink from now on. By the way, I purchased one of those French fryers for potatoes that this store offered yesterday and today and they are fine. But to get back to my story, the opening of the meat market was quite an affair, and many housewives are rejoicing that they can now get Burton Bargains in meat, too. You never saw a nicer, cleaner, more delightful place in which to buy meats. Don't forget that this store offers Burton Bargains every day except Sunday. And Burton Bargains are real ones. Try them once—see for yourself.

A woman I know, away from Maryville, received some Easter flowers from the Engelmann Greenhouses here. She also received flowers from three other cities all larger than Maryville. "The flowers you sent" she wrote her friend here, "were nicer and came in better condition than any I received." That's the way the Engelmann Greenhouses do business. By the way that is the place to go for lovely little ferns and plants that are appropriate for the home at this season.

I intended to go down to Price's Furniture Store this morning to write a little story about their attractive lamps, but when I got there the store was overflowing with new furniture that mind you, I could hardly find a "path" back to the desk. It honestly is something of an accomplishment to walk from one end of that store to the other, but let me get to the point of this story. The lovely lamps were there, and my they were so pretty, but who can look at nothing but lamps when there are new dining room suites, that attractive dining room, breakfast room and kitchen furniture made by the Hoosier Company, living room suites, "extra" chairs of different design than the davenports, that are so very good now.

Just hand your house to Price's and let them furnish and decorate it throughout. You can be sure it will be done artistically, in the perfect taste.

Costume jewelry—absolutely essential for the woman who would be "right up to now"—is most attractive—really stunning at Miss Pearl M. Keiflein's Hat and Dress Shop. Boutonnieres are pretty, too, and popular this season. They are nice for bridge prizes or for any remembrance. This store specializes in popular priced hats and dresses. Here's another secret—a large number of most moderately priced dresses are due to arrive at Miss Keiflein's shop this coming week. Drop in there and look them over.

Yessir, Easter is gone, and you "got by" all right in those old things just because they were cleaned and pressed right, didn't you? Didn't I tell you so? Of course I did, and why not be sensible about this thing and this very day go through the old things you had last year? If it is not in shreds it can be used. Just send it to the Superior Cleaners, they do master work and you can depend on results so satisfactory that you will be more than surprised.

A Maryville woman sent a silk dress to the Dreyer Cleaning Company this week. She had worn it to cook in. It was covered with grease spots. The dress had to be cleaned twice before the cleaner would return it to her. It looked like new. The charge on that dress was just the same as the charge on dresses that require only one cleaning. Now that's service, don't you think? And that's what the Dreyer Cleaning Co., offers Maryville and Nodaway County. One day service is what these cleaners offer, too, and you know when you want something in a hurry it is nice to be able to get it. Especially if it's something that has to go to the cleaner.

"Uncle Jim" Hepburn, 85, Again Head of Nodaway Mutual Insurance Co., Pioneer in Farmer Cooperation

J. L. Hepburn of Hopkins, who was re-elected as president of the Nodaway County Farmers Mutual Insurance Company at its annual meeting today, has served in that position for the past thirty-three years. It has been the head of that company ever since its establishment with the exception of the first two years.

Judge W. M. Blackford of near Maryville has been a member of the board of directors of the company since 1892 the second year of its origination.

Mr. Hepburn was born in Scotland nearly 85 years ago. In early life he emigrated to Ontario, Canada, from whence he moved to his present home near Gaynor City in the year 1867. Those were pioneer days in Northwest Missouri. The bluestem grew wild and rank upon the prairies and what few fences there were were made of rails split and hauled from the timber several miles away. Lands of roving Indians hunted upon the prairies and deer and wild turkeys were often the settlers' main supply of meat. For the most part settlers were inclined to locate along the creeks close to water and wood but Jim Hepburn and his three brothers staked their claims upon the gently rolling prairie a short distance northwest of Gaynor City. They all worked together. General farming and the breeding of purebred Hereford cattle has been followed by the Hepburns and they have been successful.

Two Daughters Here.

Mrs. D. E. Hotchkin and Mrs. George Fred Davis of Maryville are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hepburn. There are two sons, the Rev. Henry L. Hepburn, pastor of one of the wealthiest and largest churches in Chicago; and George Hepburn of near Hopkins, formerly a member of the Nodaway County Court. Another daughter, Mrs. W. H. Ghormley, lives in Kansas City.

In a recent artitcle written by William E. Allyn of the Missouri Farmer, Mr. Hepburn told of the organization of the Farmers' Mutual Fire and Lightning Insurance Company of Nodaway County.

The loss of a neighbor's home by fire and the settlement of the claim sixty days afterwards by a hard-boiled adjuster of an old line insurance company was what drove Mr. Hepburn to farmers' mutual insurance.

He says:

"It was in May, 1891, that the Nodaway Mutual was organized. On the first board of nine directors was Dr. E. W. Bishop of Ravenwood, who as a former member of the legislature had introduced and secured the passage of a bill authorizing farmers' mutual companies in this state. In order to commence doing business it was necessary that we should have at least $40,000 of insurance ready to put into force, so the first thing after our decision to form a company was, to use a present day expression, to get out and 'sell' the farmers on the proposition and solicit their patronage. It so happened that I was Assessor of this township at that time, so I worked the insurance business in connection with that job.

An Uphill Business.

"It was uphill business in those days to interest a farmer in a cooperative. They didn't know as much about mass problems then as now. It was a matter of educating them right from the start and of course the old line agents did what they could to hinder too. We few men had faith in the principle, however, and kept right at our job. I remember well approaching a well-to-do farmer who lived over on the East side of the township. After explaining what we proposed to do, he looked squarely at me and said, 'Who's going to appraise my stuff in case of loss?' I knew that we just had to have this man in our company, for he carried a lot of influence in his community, and with it a pile of business if we could land him. I summoned up all my courage, looked him squarely in the eye and asked 'Would I do?' 'Yes, sir,' was the reply, and then came another question short and to the point: 'Who's going to pay me?' Encouraged by the answer to my first question—'Would my check do?' 'Yes, sir, write 'er up. I'm in.' It has been more than thirty years since then—yes nearly thirty-five, and I am proud to say that this man is still 'in.'

Many Early Tribulations.

"One day we got together, checked up and found that we had our $40,000 and $20,000 more to go on, or $60,000. A man by the name of Black was elected President and A. Shiel of Burlington Junction, who more than any other one man had been responsible for the formation of the company, was elected Secretary. The old line fellows attacked us vigorously and soon many of our own policy holders under the spell of these fellows were 'knockin' ' the company. Thus we were beset with tribulations both within and without. To make matters worse, it was found necessary to run an assessment along the middle of the year to meet our losses.

"With the beginning of the second year I was elected president of the company, which office I have held continuously since. I came out flatfootedly for a levy suffieiently large to take care of our losses for the full year. I pointed out at this time that in my opinion frequent levies would do more harm in raising the necessary funds than one assessment for the year was adopted and has proved its soundness through all the ups and downs of our career as a company.

Some Early "Poisoned Bait."

"We have always been very fortunate in having a sufficient reserve on hand from one year to another, to care for our losses with the exception of one year early in 1900, when the funds ran low because of unusual losses. Mr. Shiel came to me very much troubled and told me of the situation. It seemed that by some means or other the old line fellows had gotten wind of our troubles and were disseminating the information that we were 'broke.' Since we were unincorporated, had no assets nor capital stock, we were in no position to borrow money from outside sources. After weighing the matter carefully I ventured to ask Mr. Shiel if he had any personal funds at his disposal. He did so and together we bolstered up the treasury with around a couple of thousand dollars of our own personal funds. The fact that the company kept on functioning was somewhat of a shock to the old line fellows, but I don't think they ever found out just how it came about. The company paid all its losses promptly for the complete year and we were of course repaid the full amount of our loan out of the levy the following fall.

"In the year 1915, Mr. A. Shiel died suddenly and his daughter, Iuka, was elected to fill the unexpired term as secretary. She had been working in the office for some time previous to her father's death and fitted into the routine so well that she has been elected continuously to the office from year to year ever since. She is conscientious, honorable and efficient and a large part of the company's success has been due to her faithfulness.

Average Cost $4.50.

"The average cost of insurance for the past five years has been $4.50 per thousand. Our lowest assessment of any year has been 1½ mills on the dollar assessment valuation, while the highest has been 3½ mills. From our original $60,000 of risks we have expanded year by year till we are now carrying risks in excess of nine million dollars. We carry only fire and lightning risks now. On the start we carried windstorm and tornado risks, too, but after carefully considering the matter we decided that since Nodaway county was only a small territory when compared to the damage which might be done by a single tornado, that we had better drop that phase of the business as unsound. We therefore transferred our windstorm business to the State Mutual on the assumption that in a territory as large as the State of Missouri not enough tornadoes would visit it in a single year to require a very heavy levy to pay the losses, while two or three in a single county might prove ruinous. We work hand in hand with the State Mutual Windstorm and Tornado Company and urge all our members to carry their windstorm risks with them. Our business year ends on the first day of December of each year and assessments are levied on the first Monday of that month. Each member is assessed in proportion to the amount of insurance he carries, based upon the losses for the past year. In the meantime of course all losses have been promptly paid as they occurred and the funds resulting from the current year's assessment are carried in reserve to care for the losses of the ensuing year."

Biggest Mutual in Missouri

"So far as I know," said "Uncle Jim" "this is the largest Mutual Insurance Company in any single county in the State of Missouri. There is, I understand, a company down south of Kansas City somewhere which operates in three counties that is perhaps larger than our company. We are different from an old line company in that we operate strictly upon a cost basis, instead of for profit. This is why we can carry risks at such a low rate. None of our directors draw any salary except on their actual expenses while attending board meetings which occur semi-annually. Our secretary is our only paid employee. Agents of course draw a commission for taking applications for insurance and looking after renewals. We give no exclusive territory to them, so they may take application in any part of the county. There is, however, not enough commission forthcoming to pay them to make a business of it. Most of them are resident policy holders—generally farmers who look after the company's interests in their communities. We pride ourselves on prompt payment of our losses and are justly proud of our record of gilt edge protection at the lowest possible cost to our members."

The officers of the company are located at Burlington Junction.

Lake Disappears and Forms 4 Miles Away

Change Takes Place Within Two Hours—Underground Passage Believed Connects Two.

Van Buren, Mo., April 10. (United Press).—An alarming phenomenom occurred recently near Ozark when Bain Lake situated six miles southwest of that town disappeared and formed four and a half miles away.

The lake which was 15 feet deep and covered three acres moved four and a half miles in two hours. Persons living in the vicinity of the lake were terrified when a roar like that of a tornado was heard. The noise continued for half an hour and it was noticed that a body of water bubbling from the ground forming a lake. Upon investigating it was found also that four and a half miles away Bain Lake was disappearing.

It is thought that an underground passage leads from the site of Bain Lake to the incention where the new lake was formed.

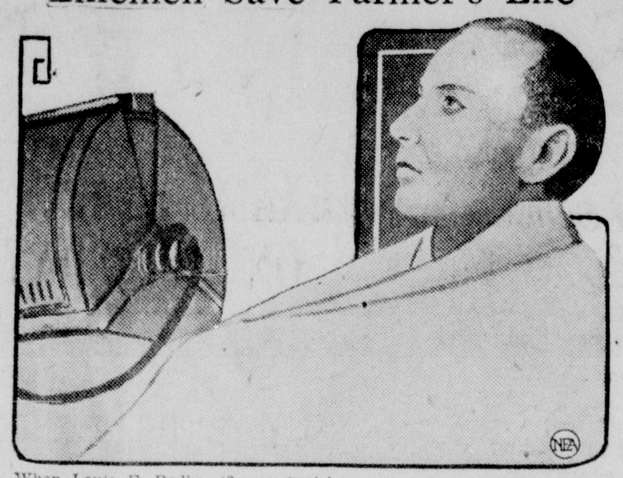
Linemen Save Farmer's Life



When Louis F. Radke, 43, was stricken with tubercular peritonitis on his farm near Thiensville, Wis., he refused to go to a hospital. So linemen for the Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light Co. battled the elements to put up a half-mile extension, so that an ultra-violet ray device could be installed in his home. It is the only treatment that could save his life, doctors say.

FARM GLIMPSES

BY BILLY TILSON.

In Friday's farm notes it should have read Ralph Pope bought 200 head of young chicks from the Groves hatchery, Henry Heaton should have read Henry Horton.

William Mozingo, northwest of Maryville, was sowing and disking oats yesterday.

J. R. Garrard, south of Gaynor, was a Maryville visitor yesterday. He says he saw a great many in the fields on his way down and says there is going to be quite an acreage of oats sowed up that way. Wheat is looking good but there was a small acreage sown in that vicinity.

R. J. Houstin, southeast of Hopkins, reports farm work starting in again in his community, some sowing oats others disking and getting their ground ready for corn. The farmers up that way are having fairly good luck with their young pigs. Mr. Houstin says there is a scarcity of feeding hogs and not many being shipped from that territory.

Fred Logan, east of Quitman, sold 2,500 bushels of corn to D. Young and 500 to Frank Boring and will commence delivering it Monday. The price received was 60 cents per bushel. Fred has a lot of work to do on the farm as he has quite an amount of stock to look after.

J. W. Cochran, east of Burlington Junction, has had his large cattle barn reshingled and says he is ready to begin farm work but is waiting for the ground to dry and warm up.

Yaple and Son of Burlington Junction, report quite a trade in the farm implement line this spring. They have already sent out more implements than in the past four or five years. We have noticed all over the county that a great many of the farmers are replacing their old with new machinery which seems to us that the farmer is in a hopeful mood and that his faith in farming is coming back and they all show an eagerness to get into the harness.

Harry Wright, north of Graham, reports some of the farmers in the fields down his way and says the acreage of oats being sown is larger than usual as some of the farmers who expected to sow wheat last fall were unable to sow on account of the condition of the ground at sowing time. He says there will be a good average of spring pigs down there.

Around Our Town

They all played ball.

The game opened with Molasses at the stick and Small Pox catching. Cigar was in the box with plenty of smoke. Horn was on first base and Fiddle on second base, backed by Corn in the field made it hot for Umpire Apple, who was rotten. Ax came to the bat and chopped. Cigar let Brick walk and Sawdust filled the bases. Song made a hit and Twenty made a score. Cigar went out and Balloon started to pitch, but went straight up. Then Cherry tried it, but was wild. Old Ice kept cool in the game until he was hit by a pitched ball. Then you ought to have ice cream. Cabbage had a good head and kept quiet. Grass covered lots of ground in the field, and the crowd cheered when Spider caught a fly. Bread loafed on third and pumped Organ who played fast and put eight out. In the fifth inning Wind began to blow about what he could do. Hammer began to knock and Trees started to leave. The way they roasted Peanuts was a fright. Knife was called out for cutting first base. Lightning finished pitching the game and struck out six men. In the ninth Apple told Fiddle to take his base. Oats was shocked; then Song made another hit. Trombone made a slide for third and Meat was put out at the plate. Betting was fast and furious. Soap cleaned up. Score 1 to 0.

Door said that if he had pitched he would have shut them out.

The mother will be Edwyna Forsyth; the girl, Marzella Clardy; the boy, Dolores Mozingo. This year it is required that the tableau, while on exhibition, be explained by a student. Christine DeBord has been elected to do this. Music appropriate for the occassion is suggested. Miss Gertrude Wray will play the piano and Beatrice Hansen the violin.

Second place was won by Cleta Null, from Casteel school, and third by Mildred Woodburn of Champaign.

A good audience was present, and each of the boy and girl contestants received a generous round of applause. The Harmony High School orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. Halley Ford, gave selections both before and after the program.

The success of the event makes it probable that it will be made an annual affair for the schools of the Harmony district. Miss Grace Petty, who is doing demonstration work at Myrtle Tree school for the State Teachers College, acted as judge, and her decision was highly commended.

The program of the elocution contest was as follows:

Schools Are Asked to Join in "Baby Hunt"

Dr. C. P. Fryer, county health officer, has appealed to rural school teachers to join in a Nodaway County "baby hunt" to aid Missouri in gaining admission to the so-called birth registration area.

In order for the state to have such national recognition, Dr. Fryer explains, it is necessary to have a registration of more than 90 per cent of births. Seventy-six counties in the state failed to reach this percentage last year, and the State Board of Health urges the special "baby hunt" through the school children.

The county health department is asking every teacher to have their pupils make a record of all children born in their district since January 1, 1924. The pupils are asked to write the names of the parents, the mother's maiden name, the child's name, the date of birth and address and to give these slips to the teachers, who will forward them to Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools. The list may be forwarded any time before school is out.

EXAMS START ON THURSDAY

TERMS OF RURAL SCHOOLS ARE NEAR END.

SOME PUPILS EXEMPT

All Applications For Scholarships, However, Must Take Tests.—Sixteen Places Provided.

Examinations for all rural eighth grade pupils of Nodaway County schools will be held next Thursday and Friday, beginning at 9 o'clock each morning. The places for holding the examinations and the persons in charge have been announced as follows by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent:

Graham High School—Supt. Chas. W. Wallace.

Skidmore High School—Supt. J. W. Pierce.

Elmo High School—Supt. L. L. Livengood.

Burlington Junction High School—Supt. Harry Rutledge.

Clearmont High School—Supt. W. H. Burr.

Hopkins High School—Supt. O. E. Jones.

Pickering High School—Supt. J. N. Geyer.

State Teachers College—Supt. Leslie G. Somerville.

Barnard High School—Supt. Ed Adams.

Guilford High School—Supt. Harry Kissinger.

Conception Junction High School—Supt. Orval Sutterlin.

Ravenwood High School—Supt. Alfred Walton.

Harmony High School—Supt. W. I. Lewis.

Gaynor High School—Prin. Gertrude Van Velsan.

Parnell High School—Supt. Alva M. Burch.

Quitman High School—Supt. Hubert Garrett.

Order Of Subjects.

The subjects will be given in the following order:

Thursday — Forenoon — Agriculture and arithmetic; afternoon — United States History and spelling.

Friday—Forenoon—Reading and grammar; afternoon—Geography and physiology.

Seventh grade pupils will not be permitted to take the final examination. Eighth grade pupils in the approved town schools and approved rural schools of the second class will be exempt from final examinations in grammar, agriculture, history and spelling, provided they made an average of 80 with no grade below 60 on the preliminary examination last week and have made a term grade of 80 or above in each of the subjects they are to be exempt on.

Pupils of the first class rural schools who are completing the course this year and who have been doing good work will, upon recommendation of the teacher, be granted the rural diploma without final examination. This recognition is given with the understanding that the school is meeting the new requirements and has been inspected and approved this year. The last examinations of eighth grade pupils in first class schools were the preliminary examinations of last week, and these grades will be averaged with class grades for the year to determine the pupil's standing. Pupils to receceive this recognition must continue in school until it closes.

All pupils writing for scholarships must take the final examinations in all subjects.

Recognition For First Class.

The special ruling for first class schools will be made again next year, but all the schools now recognized must be reinspected. "The instruction of the teacher and the equipment of the school must always merit recognition," Mr. Somerville said. "It is understood, however, that in case of questionable work by any pupil, final examinations must be taken."

Other rules for the examinations are as follows:

The examination will be based on questions furnished by the County Superintendent and pupils will be required to make an average grade of 80 per cent with no grade below 60 per cent. The student should use a good quality of paper, large sheets, preferably examination tablets or teachers' examination paper. Pupils who have a grade of 80 per cent or above in a subject from last year and write again this year, will take the last grade.

The teacher will not attend this examination.

Each applicant making the required average will receive a diploma which is a certificate of promotion and will admit him to any High School in the State.

The examination papers and blanks should be rolled up at the close of the examination and either taken or sent by EXPRESS to the county superintendent where the examination papers will be graded. DO NOT SEND PAPERS BY MAIL, as postage is too high, for they go at first class letter postage rate.

The Conductor of each examination will collect a fee of 25 cents from each pupil who takes the examination and send the amount to the county superintendent. This money will be used to employ some competent persons to assist in grading papers, for the work is too heavy and too much time is required for the county superintendent to do it alone.

The Rural School Graduating Exercises will be held on Monday afternoon, May 24, 1926, at the Maryville High School building. The town schools of the county may each hold their local eighth grade exercises at the close of their school as in previous or may join in the exercises here. Detailed program will be announced later.

No blank diplomas will be issued to those who fail.

TOO FEW SCHOOL VOTES.

By MRS. F. A. BUSH
Maryville Parent-Teacher Association.

If the number of votes cast in Tuesday's election is an index, the interest in Maryville's schools is very low. Out of the 2,500 or more citizens of Maryville who are eligible to vote, only 108 took the trouble to go to the polls Tuesday, and 17 of this number indicated a willingness to see our public schools closed for a part of the time.

Were a canvass to be taken of those who fail to vote, most of the excuses would read like this: "I forgot all about it," or "I knew it would go over any way."

The negative seventeen, with a little effort, might easily of overbalanced the favorable vote, for all we know, and we would have felt deeply humiliated had Maryville, known throughout the state as a school town, failed.

As it is, we have an election record not to be proud of this spring. It is a fact that the board of education asks only for the funds necessary to cover school expenses, without any new buildings or equipment, which are badly needed. In case of unexpected expenses, they may find themselves pressed to come out even.

Each elector should feel his or her vote is necessary to win the desired end.

Class Plans Visit to Federal Penitentiary

Burlington Junction Seniors to Go to Leavenworth, Kan., as Soon as Weather is Favorable

Harry B. Rutledge, superintendent of the Burlington Junction schools, plans to take his senior class to Leavenworth, Kan., to inspect the federal penitentiary there, as soon as the weather becomes favorable. The trip had been planned for this week, but it was decided that it would be better to wait until roads were less rough.

The party also will visit the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing.

Hopkins Boys Divide Basketball Captaincy

Howard Pistole and Henry ('Hank') Baker avoided a deadlock election for basketball captain this week when they agreed to divide the honors. Pistole will captain the team the first semester and Baker the last.

Margaret Mutti, Bobby Jones and Carl Owens tied for first honors in the second and third grade "good behavior" contest. The three drew lots for the prize and Margaret was declared winner.

EVANS ITEMS.

Because of the weather we did not get to accept the invitation of Little Brick School last Friday to an Easter Party. Therefore, we spent the afternoon in dyeing eggs and the girls served candy and popcorn to the boys.

The attendance at the school meeting Tuesday was rather small. Lenard Houston was elected in Steve Asbells place.

Lee Blackford and Lloyd Pitts were absent from school Friday. Leland Bever was absent from school Monday.

Thelma Beam visited the school Friday afternoon.

Class Play At Quitman Friday.

"Safety First," class play of Quitman High School, will be presented there Friday night of next week.

Latter Resigns Because Of Entry Into County Clerk's Race—Three Grade Teachers Chosen.

Mr. Steiger, a graduate of the Maryville State Teachers College, will succeed Superintendent Alfred Walton, who was not an applicant for re-election because of his candidacy for county clerk.

John Lewis, Leland Fryar and V. O. Hunt were installed as new members of the Ravenwood board. The high school positions other than superintendent were not filled but will be considered at an adjourned meeting. In the grades, Mrs. Alma Harker was elected as teacher of the seventh and eighth, Miss Gertrude Horton the fifth and sixth, Mrs. Inez Conn the third and fourth. The primary and Fryar teachers will be considered at the next meeting.

The Ravenwood schools the past year have been very successful under Superintendent Walton. Mr. and Mrs. Walton have made many friends at Ravenwood who regret to see them leave but who wish them success in their new field of activity.

VOCATIONAL WORK IN SCHOOL HERE IS APPROVED.

SPIRIT IS COMMENDED

State Superintendent Also Makes Two Recommendations—Funds From State and Federal Aid.

Maryville High School has been continued on the state approved list for Smith-Hughes funds for vocational agriculture, according to a letter received by the board of education from Charles A. Lee, state superintendent of schools.

Mr. Lee commended the "good school spirit existing among students of your vocational agriculture department and the teacher, also for the support of your superintendent, Mr. Ziegler."

The state superintendent also commended the "good quality of classroom work" being done by the students and teacher, Gilbert K. Arney, and the latter's interest in his students and in the community welfare in general.

Two recommendations were made for improvement of the work here: An outside shop and addition of a number of new books and a barrel sprayer.

"I am glad to report that the work of vocational agriculture throughout the state seems to be increasing in popularity, and on the whole is steadily becoming more firmly entrenched in the various communities where it is given a fair trial," r. Lee said.

Seven years ago there were three vocational agriculture schools in the state with an enrollment of forty students, while today there are ninety-nine schools with an enrollment of two thousand six hundred and twenty-six. A similar growth is shown in schools that have established courses in vocational home economics.

For the last half of the year 1925 the Maryville schools received a total aid of $1,277.76 for vocational agriculture and vocational home economics. Special the establishment of a large vocational program which will prepare young peostate and federal funds are used in ple for better farming, better homemaking, better business, and these, in co-operation with social and spiritual forces, will mean better living. The special aid for a full-time teacher in agriculture is two-thirds of the salary paid the teacher up to $2,700.00 per year. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, Missouri will receive $226,762.49 of federal funds. Of this sum $106,052.25 must be expended for teacher-training and supervision. In case the above amounts are matched by state funds. There will be sufficient funds to reimburse several additional schools next year in all lines.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HARRY MORTON, rich, handsome and unmarried, has an adopted daughter, AUDREY, with whom he lives in Springfield, but whom he takes with him on frequent trips to Kansas City where he has an apartment. The town gossips never have learned his real business.

A man whom Morton calls SMITH, and who claims to be Audrey's stepfather, appears after 18 years' absence and Morton ships him hurriedly to South America.

NONA, Kansas City girl, madly in love with Morton, falls into a jealous rage and seeks to humiliate him with the aid of a man and another girl. He laughs at he plot and leaves. She comes to his apartment to plead for forgiveness and is overheard by Audrey, who declares her own love for Morton and asks him to marry her. He refuses. He hires JOHN PARRISH as his secretary and tells the young man he must undertake to be a companion to Audrey. He takes him to his apartment to dinner. Audrey whispers to Morton, asking him point blank if he has introduced Parrish as a candidate for her hand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious).

CHAPTER IX.

Morton touched the girl lightly on the arm.

"I'll tell you everything you want to know after Mr. Parrish has gone, but child—don't embarrass the poor boy by holding whispered conferences in corners."

He turned away and Audrey followed him. Her manner was subdued and she took little part in the conversation until after dinner. When they left the dining room she took a chair by a window and looked absently into the dark street outside. The two men chatted at the other end of the room, Morton's eyes seeking from time to time to catch those of the girl. Then, at length, she looked up. She caught the slight frown upon his brow. In quick understanding she arose and walked slowly toward the organ console.

"Do you care for music, Mr. Parrish?" she asked.

Parrish's face lighted with pleasure. Morton watched him in an effort to determine whether the pleasure arose from the girl's question or from his receiving any notice from her at all.

"I do like music," Parrish said.

The girl sat on the organ stool and arranged the stops on the instrument.

"This organ can do double duty," she said. "It plays by electricity when I'm lazy; when I'm feeling energetic I do the playing myself. There's a Wagner roll in here now."

She thrust the starting lever and the organ throbbed into the "Wedding March."

The music stopped abruptly.

"I thought that was another roll," the girl said, busying herself with the mechanism. Her face had colored.

"I like that," said Parrish. "It's pretty."

She did not answer, but taking out a perforated roll, she placed it back in its container.

"I think I'd rather do the playing myself," she said at length.

She swept into the "Dead March" from "Saul." Parrish listened, happily enough, and Morton was smiling a little as he studied the bowed head of the girl. When she had finished, and without pause began the tremolo of a Scottish dirge, Morton interrupted.

"Shush!" he exclaimed. "Let's postpone the funeral service."

She let her hands fall to her lap. "I'll play whatever you want me to play," she said, obediently.

"Try some ballad music or something lively," he urged.

There was a pucker of mischief about her eyes as she answered. "All right. I'll play 'O Promise Me.' "

She kept her eyes on him and sang the words lightly as she played: "Oh promise me that some day you and I—"

Morton's face was rather grim as he signaled to her that he understood. At the end he stood up and said: "Parrishr doesn't know how to dance. Let's give him a lesson. I'll strum on his guitar and you try him out on the two-step. "That's easy and almost fashionable."

The girl arose and obeyed without demur. While Morton was tuning the instrument she instructed Parrish in the proper positions for his hands and feet.

He was a willing pupil. With knit brow and clenched jaw he followed her instructions carefully. In time to the "plunk, plunk" of the guitar he ventured forth on the dance. He was by no means awkward, and, after five minutes of serious effort, gained confidence in himself enough to speak as he tripped laboriously around the room.

"I'm trying not to step on your feet now," he told Audrey.

She gave a quick smile. "Really you're doing very nicely," she assured him.

He fell out of step at this and there was a moment's confusion until she had him started on his way again. Morton played more rapidly. Parrish swung the girl with a little more assurance. She was light on her feet, as only girls in their 'teens can be. It became apparent that Parrish was enjoying himself.

"Try him on a foxtrot, Audrey," directed Morton.

There was further instructions. Parrish listened and presently became involved in a hopeless effort to combine the foxtrot and two-step. Morton took his place for a moment and showed him what to do. When the older man had returned to his guitar Parrish made a fresh attempt.

"It's like trying to learn French and German at the same time," he commented breathlessly.

At the end of another half hour Parrish was beginning to make progress in his new art. They were interrupted by the butler.

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

Morton laid down the guitar. "Show him into the book-room," he directed.

He turned, and excused himself to the young people. "Good thing for you to rest now anyway," he told Parrish. "You and Audrey talk a little while until I come back."

Morton's book-room was a small apartment, with shelves filling the entire wall space. Few of his books were in "sets." There were volumes of history, and travel, and science, and verse, with several hundred novels, most of them by the older writers. All showed marks of use. There were a few works of new writers and one section, separated from the rest by a glass door, which was fastened by a padlock, was filled with volumes by those authors who delight to tell of the midnight aspects of sex. These were less worn than the others; some appeared not to have been read at all. Their backs were stiff and fresh.

A slanting reading table was in the center of the room and beside this table Morton's visitor was seated.

Morton greeted him with a quick handshake. "Got those papers?" he asked.

The man took them from his pocket and stood them on the table.

"Those fellows offer to settle at seventy cents on the dollar," he said.

With an exclamation of interest, Morton took up a typewritten sheet. He glanced over it and then read more carefully a bulky document, bound in one of the wrappers that lawyers use.

"First-rate," he said. "Is everything legally airtight?"

The other man nodded. "All it needs is your acceptance," he said. "If you want to sign now I'll have the notary down at my office attest your signature in the morning and we'll shoot these papers back to them."

"I never made a million any easier" Morton said, seating himself at the table and picking up the pen. "I did not expect them to offer more than twenty or twenty-five cents on the dollar at most."

The other man pointed with his finger at a line on which Morton was to sign. "You have too big a reputation down in that country for winning lawsuits," he suggested.

Morton signed his name in the three or four places indicated by his attorney and laughed. "Do you know how much actual money I've put into that scheme?" he asked.

The other man shook his head.

"It was exactly two hundred and sixty-one dollars," Morton laughed. "But—" his face grew serious—"I put in five years of the hardest work I ever did in my life. And that money was as big to me then as five million would be now."

"They're getting a bargain," his visitor said, as he buttoned his coat preparatory to leaving.

Morton let him out by a door leading directly to the main hall of the building. For a few minutes Morton leafed over the carbon copies that lay on the desk and then put them away with an air of complete content.

He returned to the drawing room, but one pace inside the door he stopped and looked around.

Audrey was sitting there alone.

"Where's Parrish?" he demanded.

The girl arose, and coming to him, laid her hands on his breast.

"I asked him to go because I said I had a headache," she said, her eyes lowered. "I couldn't stand talking to him for some reason."

Morton took her hands in his and moved away from her a step.

"That was not well done," he said, his voice kind but firm. "You had no headache and you shouldn't have treated him that way."

"I wanted to talk to you," she said.

"Audrey," he said, "little white lies are as mean as any other lies, actually. They are not mean to the people we tell them to; they are mean to ourselves. They get us in a habit of mind where we automatically tell falsehoods—and I don't want you ever to tell falsehoods, dear."

He went to his arm chair and sat down, leaning slightly forward with his finger tips together and his elbows on the arms of the chair. She stood where he left her, her eyes still upon the floor and her hands clasped before her.

"My dear little girl," he went on, "you were being unkind to him and he knew it. It is all right, if you desire, to be unkind to people who are powerful. They can take care of themselves—they're not easily hurt.

"But he is helpless. I am his employer and you're a beautiful girl. He is poor and you are rich. You have the means to hurt him and he cannot strike back. It is up to you and me to be considerate and helpful to everybody who is humble and weak. If he were a rich young man, with an assured social position, you could have him thrown out doors on his ear. I wouldn't care. But don't ever attack those who are defenseless, Audrey dear."

He made an ejaculation of concern. The girl had begun to cry. He arose hastily and took her in his arms.

"There, there! I didn't mean to be cruel!"

She was sobbing with her cheek against his coat.

"You weren't cruel," she said. "You're never cruel. I know I was a little beast, but oh—daddy dearest—my mind was so full of what I wanted to say to you that I could not talk to him at all. I wanted him to go away so I wouldn't be rude to him."

He patted her cheek and smoothed the ringlets back from her ear.

"Come over and sit down," he said, "and tell me what it was you wanted to say."

She wiped her eyes and dabbed at her nose with a tiny pad of silk that she drew from her vanity box.

As he seated himself she drew a chair beside him and sat leaning over and embracing his forearm.

"Daddy," said she, "you are trying to marry me to that young man!"

Morton temporized. "What makes you think so?"

"When a woman's in love she has an intuition about those things," she said.

She took his hand and thoughtfully separated his fingers, one by one. "I always have felt your thoughts, just as if you had spoken them, ever since I was a little girl," she went on. "But there is one thing I don't know—one thing I'm not sure about. I want you to tell me, daddy.

"Are you in love with Nona—are you going to marry her?"

(To Be Continued)

"You weren't cruel," she said. "You're never cruel. I know I was a little beast, but of—daddy dearest—my mind was so full of what I wanted to say to you that I could not talk to him at all."

Germany Launches New Trade Drive

Country Settles Down To Reorganization Of Business.—Looms As Dangerous Competitor.

Berlin, April 10.—Having surmounted her deflation crisis and settled down to the reorganization of business, Germany has started to build up her export trade on an immense scale and looms large as a dangerous competitor on the world markets.

German exports last year were $560,000,000 larger than during the preceding year,—an increase of 35 per cent. Moreover, the German government has launched a far-reaching campaign to restore this country to her pre-war position as a rival of the world's greatest commercial nations.

The German Foreign Office, which attends to the promotion of German trade abroad, has just received a far larger appropriation than heretofore and this may be construed as a symptom of the impending new offensive for the recapture of former markets.

American sales methods are achieving unprecedented popularity in German business circles, and the new campaign for increased exports will be conducted largely along American lines. Dr. von Wuelsing, the German commercial attache in the United Stats, recently conferred with leading German business men in Cologne and informed them as to the sales tactics in vogue in America. He described the best methods for the promotion of German trade in the United States. This conference may be considered the precursor of similar meetings, at which German business men will receive "tips and hunches" as to the effective sales policy in various countries.

The government here is rendering support to German enterprise in every conceivable form. Numerous taxes are being lowered or abolished, the state bank has reduced its rates and commercial treaties have been concluded during recent months with the United States, Spain, Great Britain, Italy, Russia, and Belgium.

In order to encourage export, the government is planning to establish an insurance company which will carry the losses of German traders in case foreign customers fail to meet payments. This policy is also reflected in the extension of a $75,000,000 German credit to Russia, more than a third of which is guaranteed by the Berlin government, and the proceeds of which shall be devoted to Russian purchases of machinery in Germany.

Specially lowered freight rates are prevalent on German railways for goods intended for export.

Export is also being facilitated by the growing number of important mergers in German industry. An immense steel trust has of late emerged in the Ruhr. Producers of dyestuffs, nitrogen fertilizers, photographic supplies and organic chemicals have pooled their interests in a gigantic chemical trust. Other firms have organized an artificial silk syndicate. All these amalgamations double and treble the efficiency of export.

The firms themselves, in their eagerness to recover foreign markets are selling abroad at prices far below those prevailing in the domestic market. Thus, the sugar industry has just announced its intention of raising the sugar price in Germany and lowering the price of export sugar,—a policy which benefits a few wealthy manufacturers and traders at the expense of the German consumer.

It is upon the increase of exports that Germany's fulfillment of the Dawes plan depends, and this explains in part the government campaign to raise foreign trade. But the success of this campaign may also mean the revival of Germany's role as a great world Power.

The Cheap Car

Representative Riley Wilson was talking in Washington about motor cars.

"I know a man," he said, "who bought a cheap car, and a month or so later he called on the agent who had sold it to him.

"'You sold me a car five weeks ago, didn't you?' he snarled.

"'Yes, sir, I did,' said the agent.

"'And you told me it would last a lifetime. A lifetime! Ha, ha, ha! A lifetime! Whose lifetime?'

"'Why,' said the agent, 'its own, of course.'"

Varying Dialect of High and Low Dutch

Nineteen hundred years ago, Julius Caesar, in describing Germany, called that part of the country inhabited by the lowland tribes Germany Inferior, or Lower Germany, and the more elevated regions to the south and southeastward, Germany Superior.

In time the linguistic designations of Low Dutch and High Dutch, or Low German and High German, came to be applied to the dialects used by the inhabitants of these two regions.

There are, in fact, more than a score of distinguishable dialects in the speech of the common people of the Teutonic or German race. These dialects shade into one another, the difference increasing with distance, traveling on a line from the highlands of southern and southeastern Germany toward and through the lowlands bordering on the North sea and the lower Elbe. The Low Dutch language comprehends several dialects of the north of Germany as well as the Frisian, Dutch and Flemish tongues. The High German dialects are usually classified in two divisions, as South German and Middle German.

But since the time of Luther, who translated the Bible into new High German (in distinction from the cruder literary language of the antecedent old High German), all these dialectic differences have been dying out, and are now perpetuated only in the spoken language of the peasantry.

Of the Low Dutch languages, the old Frisian is practically extinct; but Dutch remains as the national language of the Netherlands, and has a literature of its own, and Flemish is waging a determined fight to keep itself from being submerged by the French language in Belgium.

Matter of Hypnosis

The following episode took place in a boys' class in the primary department of the Sunday school of the Second Presbyterian church the Sunday following the week when Thurston had been in the city:

Each Sunday morning Miss Eleanor Kirby, who has been superintendent of the department for more than fifty years, tells a Bible story to the entire department, which is reviewed by the class teacher the following Sunday as a part of the lesson.

Miss Kirby had told the story of Philip baptizing the Etheopian, and a seven-year-old boy was trying to review it. "And then—and then—Philip—baptized him." One of the older boys interrupted: "Oh, you baby! He didn't baptize him. He hypnotized him. You baptize babies; you hypnotize men."—Indianapolis News.

Patches in Politics

Ford Funk, secretary of the Aetna Building and Loan in Topeka, and Henderson Martin, judge of the Industrial court, used to be high moguls in politics in Marion county. Funk is a Republican and Martin a Democrat.

"In the old days I dressed with becoming dignity for a county officer," said Funk. "I wore a Prince Albert coat and a clean collar.

"Henderson Martin used to have his wife sew patches on the elbows of his coat, the seat of his trousers and on the knees, just as soon as the clothes came from the tailor. Then he would go out on the stump and tell the farmers that they should not support me, because of my good clothes, but should support him, because of the patches on his clothes."—Kansas City Star.

Blood in Insects

The blood of an insect does not circulate through a system of closed blood tubes, as in man, but, instead, it more or less completely fills that part of the body cavity which is not filled with other organs. Oxygen is thus brought in contact with the blood by means of the tracheae. Insects have the most powerful muscles of all animals of their size. Relatively, an enormous amount of energy is released during the jumping or flying of a grasshopper. The tracheae pass directly into the muscles and other tissues. Here oxygen is passed into the tissues and oxidation takes place when the work is done.

Hardwood Floors

In addition to the beauty and comfort hardwood floors give to a home, considering the small cost added necessary to their installation, they are really economical. It is questionable if a home can be called modern that if without hardwood floors, and as a time and labor saver there is nothing among the things that are considered extras in home construction that affords greater satisfaction.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE

BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21:—Edgar Rice Burroughs Was an Army Cavalry Man.

"MY POSITION in life on my twenty-first birthday was that of a private in Troop B, Seventh United States cavalry, stationed in Arizona.

"My ambition at that time was to become an officer in the cavalry branch of the service, as I had recently failed in my entrance examinations at West Point and enlisted for the purpose of obtaining a commission by working my way up through the ranks.

"I had many other ambitions in youth, ranging from ownership of a candy store to heavyweight championship of the world, none of which I achieved and none of which, I now realize, would have been as satisfactory as my present vocation.—Edgar Rice Burroughs."

TODAY.—Edgar Rice Burroughs is the famous creator of books which have brought him a great reputation and no small share of the world's shekels.

NEW DIAMOND MINES PROLIFIC IN STONES

Are Believed to Be Richest in World.

The world has several times been threatened with a diamond famine. Nearly a century ago experts calculated that the diamond supply was rapidly decreasing and could not long be expected to meet the demand. The discovery of the South African mines solved this problem for a long period. A generation ago much was written about the rapid growth of the demand for diamonds, especially in America, and the probability of a serious diamond shortage if new sources of supply were not soon discovered. Likelihood of a diamond shortage for some time to come has been removed by the discovery of diamonds in the Belgian Congo. Although diamonds were first discovered in this region as late as 1907, the development of the industry has been remarkable. It is virtually a postwar industry. During 1923 and 1924 nearly 20 per cent of the world's supply of diamonds, measured by weight, was gathered in these mines.

It has been necessary in some places to cut away almost impenetrable jungle at great expense before mining operations could be commenced. In other regions the diamond deposits are covered by deep sand, clay and silt.

The new African mines are believed to be the largest in the world. It is estimated that the diamond-bearing earth is spread over 150,000 square miles. Since the region lies just south of the equator climatic conditions encountered are difficult. This region had rarely been penetrated until the discovery of diamonds. To reach it a river journey of some 500 miles is necessary from the nearest railroad.

The equipment of the mines is modern and up to date. A narrow-gauge railroad has been built and more than 1,000 miles of automobile roads constructed. Several powerful wireless stations are maintained by the diamond company to keep in touch with the outside world.

The quality of the diamonds mined varies widely. Many of the stones are blue-white or colorless and transparent, comparing favorably with those from other parts of the world. Many are yellow and brown, green, blue and red. There is a wide variation in size. Diamonds of 40 carats have been found and 10-carat stones are comparatively common. Many of the stones are found in the beds of streams where the action of the water has chipped them.

About fifty diamond mines are in operation in this general region. A single company now employs nearly 25,000 workmen. A force of a few hundred white men directs thousands of natives.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, April 10.—Grain prices closed higher on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

New bullish conception of the Argentine and American crop reports revived wheat from its opening slump and the close found prices sharply higher in all deliveries. During the session, this grain advanced 2 cents, most of which was held at the close. The market, for the most part, was dominated by the May delivery. Selling by cash houses was one of the features of the trade. Export news was favorable, one million bushels of wheat being reported taken late yesterday and this morning. Cash markets here and at other principal points were steady and unchanged.

Corn closed higher all along the line. This grain was devoid of features and the slight advances were due more to strength in wheat than any particular activity of its own.

Oats closed unchanged to slightly higher. Like corn, this grain followed wheat and lacked any particular trend of its own.

Provisions closed higher.

Rumored Col. Williams Will Plead, "Guilty"

Officer Does Not Want to Drag Others in Court-Martial Concerning Cocktail Party.

San Diego, Calif., April 10.—On the eve of his court martial on charges of intoxication and conduct unbecoming an officer, preferred by Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler, a persistent rumor was circulated here today that Col. Alexander Williams may enter a plea of guilty.

The step was contemplated by the accused officer, it was reported, because he does not desire his brother officers and his wife, a Kentucky beauty and prominent in social circles here, to be interrogated while testifying regarding the now famous cocktail party at Williams' home. Following this party, a dance was given at the exclusive hotel Del Coronado, at which, it was reported, a cocktail toast was drunk for General Butler, celebrating his arrival last March to succeed Colonel Williams as commandant of the United States Marine base.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sell and family of Barnard, Fay Casteel of Ravenwood, J. Ralph Pope of Graham and Mr. and Mrs. George Ulmer of Hopkins were Maryville visitors today.

GOLF TEAM AT M. H. S. PICKED

TWO DIETZ BROTHERS AND MARVIN DINSMORE CHOSEN.

NAME NET MEN TODAY

Coach Herbert Expecting Little From His Track Team.—Bad Weather Hinders Try-Outs.

Peter Dietz, Marvin Dinsmore, and Ed Dietz will be the Maryville High School entries in the golf tournament in connection with the Northwest Missouri High School contests to be held at the State Teachers College April 22-24. Elimination contests were held at the Maryville Country Club yesterday afternoon. Nine holes were played, and Peter Dietz and Dinsmore each shot a 47. Ed Dietz shot a 49, and George McMurry, jr., was fourth with a 50.

W. H. Herbert, the High School coach, has been working with his team for the last two weeks and expects the Maryville boys to make a creditable showing in the tournament, which will be the first of its kind to be held in connection with the contests at the College. The two boys who made the low score for the course yesterday will represent the High School in the tournament. In case either of them is unable to play, Ed Dietz will take his place.

Eliminations in tennis are being held this afternoon to determine the M. H. S. entries. In track, Coach Herbert is hoping for little. Bad weather has made it impossible for him to have outdoor work-outs and his team this year will be weaker than usual. Those who will be entered have not been selected. The entries will be made before Monday, however, as that is the last day that they will be accepted.

One Store Has 16 Pages in Post-Dispatch

St. Louis, April 10.—With an 84-page issue, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch yesterday established what it declared to be "a new high world's record for a regular week-day issue of any newspaper published in any of the leading cities of the world."

Heavy retail advertising was the reason for the unusual size. One department store took sixteen pages.

The Post-Dispatch's previous record for a regular week-day edition was 76 pages, last October 23.

School Mass Meeting Called at Skidmore

Proposed New Building Will Be Explained By Architect.—To Be Submitted To Voters Again.

A mass meeting of all residents of the Skidmore Consolidated School District has been called for Monday night at the Royal Hall in Skidmore, for the purpose of hearing an explanation of the plans for a new high school building.

A bond issue of $85,000 has been proposed by the school board of the district but it was defeated last week by a narrow margin. The proposal probably will be re-submitted within a month, according to Dr. J. E. Pierpoint, president of the board.

At Monday night's meeting, H. P. Pompel of Kansas City, architect, who designed the proposed building, will explain the plans and also the requirements laid down by the state board of education.

Twelve to Graduate From H. S. at Elmo

Grades of Seniors to Be Averaged Soon to Determine the Honor Students.

Twelve students will be graduated from the Elmo High School, Friday, May 14. Those in the class are: Joe Hull, Raymond Russell, Earl Phillips, Marjorie Teuscher, Beulah Kelley, Lela Spangler, Pansy Wood, Geraldean James, Marlee Elrod, and Vera Hall.

Miss Teuscher is president of the class. The grades of the graduates will be averaged up soon to determine which shall be valedictorian and which shall be saluatorian. Mrs. L. L. Livengood is sponsor of the class. The commencement speaker has not yet been chosen.

All seniors will take their final examinations a week or two earlier than the other students in order that they may prepare for commencement which begins with the baccalaureate sermon Sunday May 9. All members of the class have purchased memory books in which to record the events of commencement and to make note of some of the activities of their school lives.

Rehearsals on the class play will begin soon. The play selected is "The Bashful Mr. Bobbs" and Mrs. Livengood will be in charge of the production.

Burlington Junction Has Baseball Team

A high school baseball team has been organized at Burlington Junction and practices have been held whenever the weather was favorable. Two games are scheduled for next week, both with the Elmo High School team. The first will be played at Elmo on Wednesday afternoon, after school, and the other will be played at Farrell park, Burlington Junction, after school Friday afternoon.

Batteries for Elmo will probably be Crowdes, catcher, and Adkins or Phillips, pitcher.

All Over Northwest Missouri

Two And A Half Per Mile.

Don't object to railroad fare of three cents a mile after you hear what it cost a salesman for the Standard Biscuit Company last week to come from Stanberry to Albany. In round figures he paid two dollars and a half for each mile he traveled. He was pulled out of snow drifts twice, once at a cost of five dollars and another time for three dollars. He ruined a tire. He tore up two pairs of chains. The radius rods of his car were sprung and with a few other little annoyances he was kept busy for about fourteen miles.—Albany Ledger.

Savannah Fair Aug. 30-Sept. 3.

Wednesday afternoon the Andrew County Fair Board met and made plans for the fair which is to begin Monday, August 30, as entry day and continue throughout the week until Saturday, September 3.—Savannah Reporter.

Defeated Light Franchise.

The proposition for the granting of a 20-year franchise to the Maryville Electric Light & Power Company was defeated at Grant City Tuesday by 36 votes.—Grant City Times.

St. Joseph Water to Savannah?

(Savannah Reporter).

The St. Joseph Water Company are now laying eight-inch water mains to the Country Club in the south part of Andrew county and to the newly-platted addition to be sold in lots just east of the Country Club. This may solve the water problem for Savannah as that makes St. Joseph's unlimited water supply within seven and a half miles of Savannah's city limits.

Leases Big Lake Property.

John Mavity and his wife are moving this week to Big Lake having leased for the season the Coke Jackson place, which they will operate as a first-class amusement resort. Mr. Jackson and his family are moving to their farm, north of the Big Lake property.

Mr. Mavity plans many improvements at the lake resort among them the razing of the present store building and construction of a new building for a restaurant to serve short orders at all hours, regular meals and special spreads for auto parties and other guests at the lake. The dance hall will be enlarged and dances with the best of music will be regular features at the lake under management of the Mavitys. The pool hall will be improved and a better baseball diamond than ever provided. Construction of a half mile race track also is included in the tentative plans of Mr. Mavity.—Holt County Sentinel.

Students Make $3,983.38.

(Gallatin North Missourian).

The students of the Vocational Agricultural Department of the Gallatin High school are making good and that the value of the work in this department of our school cannot be over estimated is evidenced by the report of their work for the past year by R. P. McWilliams, instructor in Vocational Agriculture. With the various projects, the students made a net profit of $3,983.38. They won prizes at fairs and shows to the amount of $1,512.50.

Lamkin To Give Address.

Dr. Uel W. Lamkin, president of the Maryville State Teachers College will give the commencement address for the graduating class of the Plattsburg high school on Thursday evening, May 20.

The class of 1926 of the Plattsburg high school will number about 17.

Notice - Poultry Rasiers

Do you kill the mites that eat your chickens?

One mite lays thousands of eggs.

If a spray solution is used strong enough, and you get it on the mites, you possibly kill THEM. But what about the THOUSANDS of eggs the mites laid? You did not destroy them, and that is the reason you spray again.

There is a better way: SAFE AND SIMPLE.

SAFE, because no chemicals are used. Nothing to harm skin or feather, nor cause sore feet or injure bronchial tubes.

SIMPLE, the simplicity of it makes you wonder why someone didn't think of it years ago.

SABINS PATENTED VERMIN TRAY ROOST gets both mites and THEIR EGGS and is always sold with the guarantee that it will do all we claim for it or your purchase money is refunded. It will end forever your largest loss in the production of poultry and eggs.

After installing these roosts you will have no further expense or trouble.

For further information write or call MISSOURI SALES CO., 813-15-17-19-21-23 South 7th St., St. Joseph, Mo. Phone 6-0541.

A reliable representative will be needed in this territory, if you are interested in introducing this poultry necessity, write SALES MANAGER, ABOVE ADDRESS.

TRAFFIC WILL BE DISCUSSED

ENGINEERS TO STUDY TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS.

WILL MEET IN K. C.

More Than 300 Expected To Attend Convention There Next Week.—To Cover Many Fields.

Kansas City, Mo., April 10.—The meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers here next Wednesday Thursday and Friday will see the discussion of vital transportation problems of the country. Experts in railroad, street car, interurban and highway construction and operation will discuss at length the various problems of their respective fields, while the divisions of city planning and sanitary engineering will consider the modern problems encountered in their fields.

Three hundred and more engineers from all over the country will be gathered here for the event, headed by George S. Davison, of Pittsburgh, Pa., head of the society and president of the Gulf Refining company.

Some of the topics which will be discussed are: "The Relationship of the Railroads to Modern Highway and Urban Traffic," "Urban and Interurban Busses," "Some Observations on City Planning," "Reducing the Cost of Highway Plan Under the City Plan," and "The Scope, Aims and Purposes of the Construction Division."

Women Voters to St. Louis for Gathering

President Of Organization Arrives In St. Louis Last Night.—All Sections To Be Represented.

St. Louis, April 10. (United Press)—Women voters, delegates to the seventh annual convention of the National League of Women Voters which opens here Wednesday, are arriving for the conference. The members of the board of trustees, headed by Miss Belle Sherwin, president, arrived last night.

Virtually every state in the country will be represented in the discussion of topics relative to federal aid, taxation laws, world court, education, the legal status of women and immigration.

An array of nationally known speakers made up a program which will cover thirty regular sessions and conferences and include ten dinners and luncheons.

Particular interest is attached to the St. Louis meeting because it was in this city, in 1919, that the idea of a League of Women Voters was conceived by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

Severe Earthquake Wrecks Many Homes

Thousands Of Inhabitants In Azores Reported Without Shelter As Result Of Earth Tremors.

Lisbon, April 10.—A severe earthquake has wrecked hundreds of houses in the Azores, according to dispatches received here. Thousands of inhabitants are without shelter but no deaths have been reported.

Unionville Papers Were Consolidated

A deal has been completed which consolidates the Putnam County Journal and the Unionville Republican, and hereafter one newspaper will be issued in this field, and that under the name of the Unionville Republican. This is in line with the tendency of the times for the past several years. During the past year more than thirty newspapers in Missouri have consolidated or gone out of business, and during the past five years the mortality has been very excessive. This has been due to the fact that cost of operating and producing newspapers have shown little tendency to reduce since the war, and yet are on a basis of approximately two and a half or three times what they were prior to the war.—Unionville Republican.
